

WHAT DO I NEED TO KNOW ABOUT

ACCESSIBILITY ADA TAX CREDIT?

Can small businesses receive tax benefits for making their websites accessible to people with disabilities? The simple answer is, yes! Use our handy guide to determine if your business qualifies!*

DO I QUALIFY?

MAXIMUM REVENUE OR EMPLOYEES

According to the ADA Title III fact sheet, “A business that for the previous tax year had either revenues of $1,000,000 or less or 30 or fewer full-time workers may take advantage of this credit.”

This credit can be claimed against any effort to provide access to individuals with impairments, including expenses on website accessibility.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

COVER UP TO $10,250

Tax credit for web accessibility expenditures can cover 50% of the eligible access expenditures in a year up to $10,250, with the first $250 excluded from credit (maximum credit of $5,000). For example, if a business spends $7,000 on accessibility for its website, the first $250 will not be credited. So 50% of $6,750 would amount to $3,375 in tax credit.

MAKE THE INVESTMENT NOW

The digital world can sometimes be a challenging place for people with disabilities. And, while enhancing website accessibility comes with costs, the bigger picture of an inclusive web is one we all can get behind. Claim your tax credit in 2023 with an enhanced website!
